

2012 Thompson Classic Summit G&CC - a review in pictures, as a sequence

Registration

Registrars, Claudia Di Giandomenico (Secretary-Treasurer), Evan Smith and Kirsten Brown.

Evan distributes the tam gift - "Are you sure it fits?"

From the putting green to the cart staging area.

Summit's Gary Ainlay (white hat) waits for the horn signalling time to move on.

Ready to compete in the Hi/Lo competition.

Reception

Past Directors, Ted Baker (left) and Brian Curtner discuss architecture projects.

Two current Directors, Larry Smithers (left) and Jay Peters enjoy friendship.

Former Director Howard Back - Thornhill Ambassador (sunglasses), reviews his latest trip to Italy with Director Mark O'Bright.

David Clark (right), a former Director, holds a partners' scorecard meeting.

Karen Hewson, Director, Canadian Golf Hall of Fame.

Director John Smith hustles tickets, Strongbow in hand.

Summit's natural topography was put to good use by Stanley Thompson, making it one of the province's finest golf courses.

Dundas Valley's Ambassador Grant Forrest demonstrates swing balance.

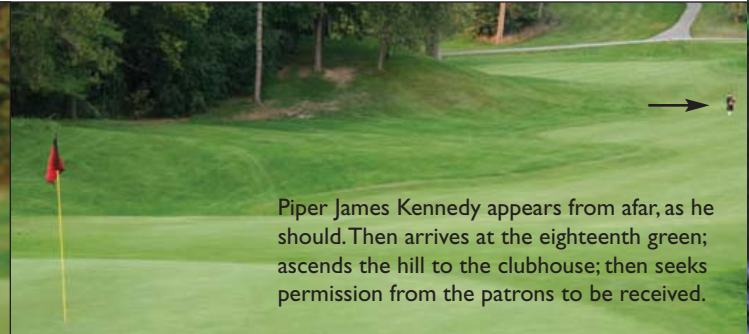

Toronto Golf Club members Linda Campbell and Richard Wood appear to be standing on a ship's deck.

Society Vice-chair, John Dines, discusses the golf course with University of Guelph landscape architecture students.

The piper arrives.

See next two pages for the ceremony of the haggis, and the evening events.

Piper James Kennedy appears from afar, as he should. Then arrives at the eighteenth green; ascends the hill to the clubhouse; then seeks permission from the patrons to be received.

The piper