

2012 Thompson Classic: dedicated to Summit's centenary, George Cumming and Stanley Thompson

Failte/Welcome • Grace • Toast • Competition • Foundation

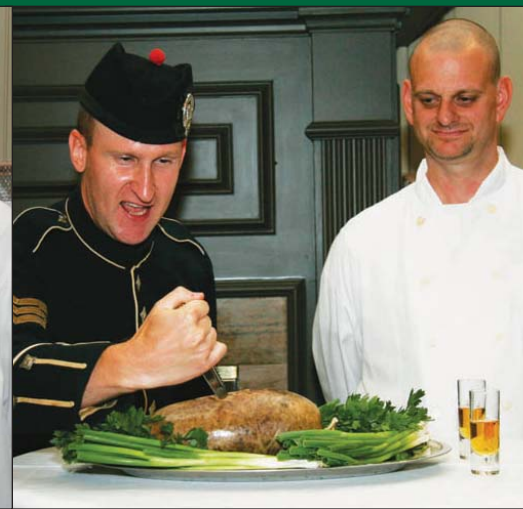

Piper Kennedy now picks up chef Steve Wilson and the haggis.

They continue their march into the dining room.

The piper begins an intonation to the haggis - Scottish theatre at its best.

And with fervency pulls a knife from his sock cuff, attacks the beast, killing it dead.

Then the two Scots, with a toast, pronounce the ceremony over.

Society Chair, Jay Peters provides a welcome as Michael Cruickshank looks on.

Jim Fraser says grace by reciting a Robbie Burns poem.

Toast: Michael introduces Summit member Geoff Perkins, a founder of the Society; and Karen Hewson introduces honoured guest Dick Grimm. Then all three make a toast 'to George and Stanley.'

(left) Tom Price, Summit Director of Golf, announces the Hi/Lo competition winners - the Summit team. After a round of 'fix' from the patrons, Tom presented each with their quiches, (left to right) Ian Leggatt (incoming Director of Golf,) Bill Masson, Graham Eaton, Chris Taschner. (inset) The quiche, with its engraved base, is a Scottish ceremonial drinking vessel used for special occasions.

(left) John Dines, Chair of the newly-formed Stanley Thompson Foundation announces the Thompson Scholarship Program.

Dick Grimm and Geoff Perkins make comments after the toast. Dick is the first recipient of the PGA of Canada George Cumming Distinguished Service Award; and Geoff is a former two-time President of Summit and a past Chair of the Green Committee.

Kirsten Brown (middle) and a recent Masters of Landscape Architecture grad, with University of Guelph Landscape Architecture students - are symbolic of future Thompson Scholars (left to right) Alex Forbes, Christine Fraser, Ed Gale and Colin Baddeley.